Houses burgled in RBI Quarters

300 gm gold jewellery stolen from three houses in heavily guarded Quarters; Police suspect handiwork of insiders

Mysuru, Sept. 18 (RK&KS)- Three houses in the heavily guarded RBI Quarters have been burgled yesterday night with miscreants decamping with 300 gm gold ornaments from the three locked houses, coming under Metagalli Police limits here.

This could probably be for the first time that miscreants struck the houses at RBI Quarters, which is guarded by Central Industrial Security Force (CISF) personnel.

The family members of these three houses had been to their native places to attend religious ceremonies on Sunday. The incident came to light this morning upon their arrival.

Metagalli In-charge Inspector Anil Kumar and staff, who rushed to the spot this morning, conducted mahazar.

DCP Dr. Vikram V. Amathe, N.R. Sub-Division ACP Umesh G. Shet, City Fingerprint Unit ACP Rajashekar, SI Appajigowda and the Dog Squad also visited the spot.

The Police have suspected the burglaries to be the handiwork of insiders as the place is heavily guarded.

A case has been registered at Metagalli Police Station in this regard.

It is yet to be ascertained how the burglars entered the RBI Quarters premises which has four gates guarded by CISF personnel besides CCTV cameras installed at the entry points and also at vantage points.

Dasara Effect

Mayor on horseback inspects cleanliness of city

Mayor M.J. Ravikumar on horseback inspecting the cleaning operations at K.R. Circle in city this morning.

Mysuru, Sept. 18 (MTY, NNN &US) - All out efforts are being made to see that the city regains its top spot as the cleanest one in the country. With Dasara fast approaching, the first Citizen, the Mayor M.J. Ravikumar himself has taken keen interest to see that at least the Central Business District is kept clean.

To ensure the cleanliness, Ravikumar went around the city this morning on horseback to inspect the cleanliness operation undertaken by the Mysuru City Corporation (MCC). As per the tradition, the Mayor of city goes on horseback during Jumboo Savari on Vijayadashami Day. Probably Ravikumar inspecting city on horseback was also a practice to enable him go effortlessly on the procession day.

To enhance the beauty of the city for Dasara, a few walls are painted with heritage structures. However, a painting of the Mayor on horseback on a wall has invited severe criticism from the public who claim that such pictures were only confined to Maharajas who ruled the city.

Brain-borne betrayal

Old-timers in Mysuru can recollect the days goneby when a pass in the then intermediate class public examination was considered proper stage in life to opt for choosing courses to be pursued and also colleges to seek admission in the backdrop of highly limited choices of both courses and colleges compared to the wide world of education in our days. In one of the quiz programmes, aired by the government-sponsored Kannada channel, the teenage participants in their 10th standard, when asked about the calling they dream of in later life most often mention one or the other from among doctor, engineer, administrator, chartered accountant, Police officer, soldier and so on with hardly anyone favouring the line of scientific research. The often-heard call to the youth by many leading lights in society to cultivate scientific temper seems to have not been taken seriously, although India is reportedly among the countries hosting the highest number of graduates in science subjects.

The factor of landing jobs with attractive pay package that saw a steep rise in the number of engineering colleges, with Karnataka being a leader in the race over the past few decades has virtually vanished into thin air given the ongoing feature of hundreds of those colleges pulling down their shutters. In a matching scenario, the flood of business schools across all regions of the country has overshadowed institutions offering courses in various science subjects, again the factor of landing jobs ruling the roost.

The points raised in the foregoing paragraphs prompts one to debate issues of a) Luring the country's youth to the field of scientific research, b) Establishing institutions on the model of the few highly rated ones such as IISc. (Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru) and TIFR (Tata Institute of Fundamental Research, Mumbai) to name just two among many more funded by both the State and Corporates, c) Providing adequate budgetary support by the government, d) Facilitating an ambience for pursing scientific research similar to the many well-marked institutions abroad, e) Societal and State recognition for achievers in the field of science and so on.

One cannot but refer to media reports portraying both the various prestigious academic bodies overseeing scientific research in the land as well as leading research and development laboratories being plagued by elements inimical to creativity and research aimed at results most beneficial to society. In this context, the finding from a study by a global agency published last week in a section of the press that reputed institutions publish research papers in bogus journals makes a disturbing revelation. The flock of researchers facing that charge are agents of brain-borne betrayal.

BOASTING ABOUT HIS MANGOES?: Former Maharashtra Revenue Minister Eknath Khadse, no stranger to controversy, is the latest political leader fighting off allegations of misogyny with activist Anjali Damania filing a case against him for allegedly making sexually suggestive remarks about her at a function in Buldana last week. The Minister has vehemently denied making those remarks in the manner they have been represented by Anjali Damania. The activist said Khadse made the objectionable reference last week while speaking at his birthday function in Buldana. She had previously levelled corruption allegations against Khadse and his family. In the Buldana speech, the senior BJP leader is alleged to have said, "my mangoes are six-years-old now and are giving me an income. I hope her mangoes too have grown."

Fake designer goods scanner

New York: New York-based start-up Entrupy has invented a small, portable scanner that rich people can use to check the authenticity of designer bags in mere seconds.

According to data from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, the global counterfeit industry is worth around 460 billion dollars, a big chunk which involves counterfeit luxury goods from brands like Louis Vuitton or Channel. The fake is so well-made that one cannot make out. That's where technology come in. Entrupy, have come up with a device that allows anyone to check the authenticity of luxury products, anytime, anywhere. The Entrupy scanner connects to your smartphone and works in tandem with an app. The device is able to take high quality microscopic pictures of the material, processing, workmanship, and serial number of the product and then compare these images with world's most popular brands. Last year, Entrupy announced an authentication accuracy rate of 97%, and in August of this year, it had achieved an accuracy of 98.5%.

"Birdman of Gujarat"

Gujarat: Harsukh Bhai Dobariya, of Gujarat, India, is very popular with birds. Every day, between 2,500 and 3,000 parrots and sparrows visit his 4-acre farm to feed on tasty millet cobs and build their nests away from predators. Nicknamed "The Birdman," Dobariya has spent the last 17 years of his life looking out for the birds and transforming his land into a safe ecosystem for them. It all started in the year 2000, when Harsukh Bhai Dobariya suffered a leg fracture on his property in the Junagadh district of Gujarat, and had to spend most of his time in bed. After a neighbour came to buy some pearl millet from him, he had the idea to hang a millet cob on his balcony, which soon caught the attention of a parrot. As more birds started visiting him on a daily basis and the limited space on his balcony became a problem, so in 2012, Harsukh Bhai and his family the Birdman moved on a 4-acre piece of land on the outskirts of Junagadh, where the birds didn't bother anyone.

Residents complain of uneven walking path on Kalidasa Road

Sir,

We the residents of Jayalakshmipuram use Kalidasa Road very often for our various shopping needs. There is no proper walking path (footpath) at all, particularly on the stretch from Panchavati Circle towards Chandrakala Hospital. The whole path is so uneven that it is impossible to walk risking our lives.

Adding to this, the shop owners have occupied the walk path to their convenience. Now the MCC is laying interlocking tiles on most of the footpaths across the city and it is a welcome sign. If this stretch is taken up on priority it will help a lot of people residing in the surrounding areas.

I request the area Corporator as well as the MCC officials concerned to consider providing a smooth walk path on priority and help senior citizens and others. Currently, all of us are walking on the road risking our lives.

More on R.K. Narayan and the film 'Guide'

Sir,

Apropos the letter titled "R.K. Narayan and the Film "Guide" (SOM dated Sept.7) the reader has strongly recommended reading the book 'Guide' and viewing the film. But more interesting and lively is the article written by R.K.Narayan in his own inimitable style, in the famous American Magazine 'Life' in 1967 or so about his experiences with the film-makers. The article was titled 'Is this Malgudi?' I wish someone digs out this article for the benefit a large number of SOM readers.

Mysuru-Bengaluru Highway traffic thrown out of gear

Cauvery Pushkara Mela at Srirangapatna

Mandya Sept.18 (Nagaiah)- The Cauvery Pushkara Mela held once in 12 years in Srirangapatna, may not draw as much crowd as the Kumbh Mela in other parts of the country, but the 12-day Mela drew lakhs of people yesterday throwing traffic completely out of gear on the busy Mysuru-Bengaluru Highway.

It was the sixth day yesterday and there was a sea of devotees descending on the serene Cauvery River banks from different States including Tamil Nadu, Maharashtra and Andhra Pradesh to have a dip in the holy river.

Traffic pile-up: The Police and the organisers were taken completely by surprise with such a surge in crowd as the devotees came in all forms of transport — be it buses, cars, two-wheelers, lorries, trucks, tempos and trains.

The traffic piled up for nearly three kilometres on either side of the Highway as the parking arrangements became totally inadequate. Being a Sunday and since the Dasara holiday season is almost beginning, also added to the rush, disrupting the regular flow of traffic. The Police had to make herculean efforts to control the traffic.

Parking arrangements: The parking arrangements have been made at the premises of Sri Ranganathaswamy Temple. In addition to this, Police have made arrangements at the open grounds near Gosai Ghat and also near Sri Nimishamba Temple. All the parking lot was full yesterday and hence, people were forced to park the vehicles on either side of National Highway and trudge long distances to reach the Cauvery Pushakara Mela that was taking place.

Trainloads of bhaktas: The bhaktas started arriving by train from Saturday night itself to have a darshan of Sri Ranganathaswamy and were found standing in long queues. They were provided drinking water and eatables.

The devotees then thronged the bathing ghats at the Cauvery for the holy dip and performed pujas, japa, sankalp snana, pitra tarpana, pinda pradhana, shraadda, swayampaka dhana and godhana. After 6 in the evening, Maha Mangalarathi was performed at the Cauvery River.

Bath at ban areas: The District Police had made all arrangements to see that the people gathered were not put to inconvenience by bringing additional forces. Boards were put up restricting the bathing areas. However, the people as usual continued to ignore the warning boards and were seen performing pujas and having baths in other areas.

Food shortage: Every day free meals are arranged for the devotees. But due to the devotees crossing lakhs, the organisers were forced to shut down the free-meal counters early. Hence, the devotees were forced to look for private restaurants, that dot the Highway. The Mela will end on Sept. 23.

LPG leakage, accident averted

Mysuru, Sept. 18 (PM&KS)- Timely arrival of the fire brigade personnel has averted a major accident due to LPG leakage at a house in Siddarthanagar here yesterday.

It is reported that the family members of the house on Moksha Marga in Siddarthanagar here, belonging to one Jayaraj, were frying red chillies inside the compound when the LPG cylinder caught fire due to leakage. The fire partially burnt the electricity meter board and the door of the house.

As the Fire Station was informed about the fire, the fire personnel, who arrived at the spot, managed to extinguish the fire and prevented it from spreading further. Luckily no one was injured in the incident.

Minor girl forced into marriage, rescued

Mysuru, Sept. 18- A minor girl, who was forced into marriage against her wish, has been rescued by the officials of the Child Helpline and has been sent to the Girls Balamandira in city. A complaint has been lodged with Jayapura Police in this regard.

It is learnt that the girl, who is aged 17 years and a resident of Udbur in the taluk, was forced to marry a distant relative by her parents against her wish.

Meanwhile, a villager tipped off the officials of the Child Helpline about the marriage, who rushed to Udbur along with the officials of the Child Protection Committee and spoke to the girl and her parents during which the girl reportedly told the officials that she was forced by the family elders to marry.

Based on the girl's statement, the Child Helpline officials lodged a complaint with Jayapura Police and have sent the minor girl to the Girls Balamandira in city.

As the girl's Aadhaar Card states that the girl has completed 18 years of age, the Police said that they would visit the School and collect the girl's birth certificate to ascertain the age for further action.

The Police have registered a case against the girl's parents and other family members under Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006.

Problems galore at ESI Hospital

Hospital lacks toilets, gynaecologists, scanning machines

Mysuru, Sept. 18 (SP&KS)- The Employees State Insurance (ESI) Hospital on KRS Road here has come under severe criticism for lack of doctors, scanning machines and toilets, besides the building construction being incomplete.

Addressing a press meet at Pathrakartara Bhavan here on Saturday, B. Siddaraju, General Secretary of ESI Vimadarara Hitharakshana Samithi alleged that the assurances given by the MPs, Ministers and MLAs to solve the problems at the ESI Hospital remained as only assurances.

He said that the Hospital was to be upgraded in 18 months and the previous building was demolished, but though seven years have passed, the construction has remained incomplete and the patients were being treated in rooms resembling cowsheds.

He further said that the Hospital lacks lady doctors to treat pregnant women and do not even have scanning machines and added that they had approached MPs Pratap Simha, R. Dhruvanarayan and C.S. Puttaraju, the then Labour Minister Parameshwar Nayak, Minister Santosh Lad, ESI Corporation Director Nayak, former PM H.D. Deve Gowda and had apprised them of the problems but in vain.

Stating that the hospital lacks toilets, he alleged that the hospital has only stairs and lacks lift facility and ramp for the specially-abled persons.

He said that though they were staging dharna in front of the hospital, no action has been taken so far and warned of intensifying the protest if facilities were not provided at the earliest.

Samithi President H.S. Jagadish, Convener Ramakrishna and others were present.

About 100 members of the event organisers participated in the bike rally carrying a portrait of Mahisha. Two people in the garbs of Mahisha and Gautama Buddha also rode the bikes. Sri Gnanaprakash Swamiji and several rationalists were present.

Obesity and infertility

Weight loss plays a very important role in improving the chances of pregnancy. This is true whether it is an attempt for natural conception or through any method of assisted reproduction. In countries where infertility treatment is state funded, patients are refused IVF treatment id the female is over 35 BMI. They will be advised to loose weight before any treatment is initiated as studies have shown that the success rates in these patients are very low and IVF is a very expensive treatment. In India where patients are paying from their pocket, it is the responsibility of the doctor to make the patients aware of this fact. This would save the patients a lot of money and frustration of repeated IVF failure.

There are basically two approaches to weight loss. Surgical and non-surgical. In patients that are unable to loose weight by medically supervised weight loss programs and are morbidly obese, Bariatric surgery is offered as an option. Currently this is the most effective treatment for weight loss in morbidly obese patients.

In Gunasheela Fertility Centre, we believe in a comprehensive approach in the treatment of infertile couples. We see a large number of obese infertile patients. If they are morbidly obese they are advised a medically supervised weight loss program. If unsuccessful or they have already tried many attempts at weight loss, Bariatric surgery is offered.

We have till date performed Bariatric surgery on 26 obese infertile women that had come to the hospital asking for IVF. Out of these 14 have conceived spontaneously. This is comparable to the success rate of IVF in normal weight females. As a result of getting pregnant at a lower weight, their antenatal period has been uneventful. Pregnancy in obese females poses significant risks to both the mother and the fetus. Pregnancy induced Diabetes, Blood pressure, Growth retardation in the foetus, premature delivery etc. are some of the problems in obese pregnant women. STAR EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW...

Meet Nawab Shafath Ali Khan- 3

Lover of wildlife, celebrated hunter, sharp-shooter, tranquillising expert and more...

By N. Niranjan Nikam

Star of Mysore (SOM): How much of preparation goes when you shoot man-eating tigers and rogue elephants?

Nawab Shafath Ali Khan: Bascially physical fitness and mental alertness are the major factors. A hunter is a complete man. He knows how to repair his vehicle, stitch his shoes in the forest, carry out minor repair to his weapons and who could read the forest, pick up the slightest sound and check the direction of the wind. Patience has to be in abundance. I don't remember how many nights I have spent on a tiny machan on a tree in freezing cold and rainy night.

Tracking rogue elephants one has to walk 10-20 kms a day and this can be quite taxing. Preparing for these operations has become a way of life for me. I live on the most wildlife rich area of the sub-continent where I see wild elephants, tiger, leopard and sloth bear in my morning and evening walk. This keeps my mind alert and greatly helps in dangerous and close encounters with dangerous beasts that I have to tranquillise or eliminate as per government orders.

SOM: There is no scientific basis in culling and it is not very successful in Africa as you claim, criticise a few. How do you react to this?

Shafath Ali Khan: There is no place for sentiment and religious connotation in wildlife management. I have been asked this question in several national workshops that I have attended. But when I ask them for an alternate solution no doable common sense approach has come forth.

I basically don't like culling or shooting. I am now an authorised tranquilliser and resource person for six States and run an NGO 'Wild Life Tranqui Force.'

SOM: What do you do here in the NGO?

Shafath Ali Khan: We are training front-line forest staff and veterinarians of six States in the country. I don't see any alternative to scientific culling as far as our country is concerned. As an advisor and culling officer to Forest Department of Bihar, I have conducted several experiments to arrest the exploding population of blue bulls. Bihar is a fertile State with Ganges and several rivers flowing. The Gangetic plains are rich in crops. Overpopulation of the blue bulls from the forest, which consist of only 5 percent has found its way into agricultural fields causing as much as 35 percent damage to the farmers.

If at all there is a substitute to culling, it would have been adopted long ago and population controlled. Today UP, Jharkhand, Haryana, Rajasthan, Gujarat, Maharashtra, and Uttarakhand are reeling under the problem of overpopulation of wild boar and blue bulls and no solution is in sight.

Animal right activists might have a vested interest. These organisations get funds from abroad and with politicians and muscle power they arm-twist the senior forest officers to do what they want them to do rather than what is in the interest of the country. They are often bulldozed to falling in line and let matters drift.

Don't be surprised if the price of Dal becomes Rs. 600 a kg as blue bulls, antelopes deliver two calves annually and wild boar sow delivers anywhere up to 19 piglets in a span of three months. There are virtually no carnivores to control this population explosion outside the forest. So, what are we heading for is anyone's guess.

SOM: As a wildlife conservationist, what is your view on radio collaring of tigers and other animals?

Shafath Ali Khan: In my opinion it is an utter failure. The reason why I say this is, it affects the breeding of tigers. Because when the tiger mounts a tigress, he starts biting on the top of her neck and it is a natural instinct. When the radio collar is there, the tiger bites into the radio collar and finds something hard and abnormal and it withdraws. I have seen this phenomenon physically.

In Siriska Tiger Reserve, when they introduced tigers with radio collar there was no breeding at all and I had predicted this 30 years ago.

Each radio collar weighs almost 1.5 Kgs and when a wild tiger is all of a sudden burdened with it then his entire movement and body language changes. This famous tiger Jay, which was tranquillised and radio collared, his home range, which was 38 sq. metres before the radio collaring, increased to 58 sq.mtrs.

SOM: Why is that?

Shafath Ali Khan: When you have something implanted in an animal, then its entire movement changes and it may come closer to human habitation also.

Also, the battery life which is supposed to last one year, never lasts that long. For instance, in this tiger Jay in Umed Sanctuary in Maharashtra, the battery ran out in two months and it disappeared. It was a pretty tiger and later it even died.

Then each radio collar costs about Rs. 3.5 lakh to Rs. 5 lakh and the cost involved in catching a wild tiger is another Rs. 5 lakh. With all this operation, it does not come cheap.

There is my own experience of a leopard that I tranquillised in Gundlupet in Muntipara village. This leopard had a radio collar, which had gone dead long time back. This animal entered a house and but for my early intervention, the girl living in that house would have been dead. It was a problematic leopard which was caught, radio collared and released and it again entered human habitation. The biggest problem of radio collaring is it gives the Forest Department a false sense of temerity to release the animal that should not be released. As a result the lives of villagers and poor forest dwellers are shackled.

SOM: What about the experience of shooting a man-eating tiger?

Shafath Ali Khan: In July 2017, I was invited by the Maharashtra Government to tranquillise a man-eating tigress that had claimed four human lives. I darted from a distance of 15 metres when she was galloping away. But the most hair-raising incidence was shooting a man-eating tigress in 2009 in UP, where I tracked her for 35 days and nights and shot her when she charged from a distance of six metres.

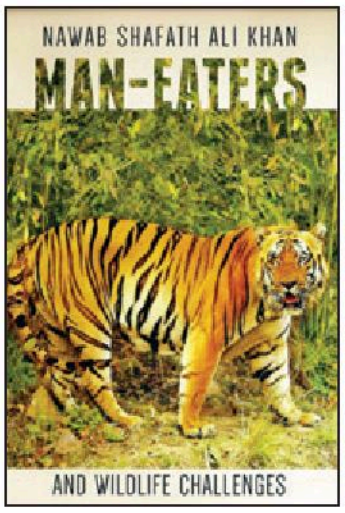
SOM: Have you had any near-death-like experiences as a sharp-shooter in all these years?

Shafath Ali Khan: The most memorable day in my life was on Dec.17, 1976, when I was called by Van Ingen and Van Ingen (the famous taxidermists in the country) to shoot a rogue elephant that had killed 12 people. Since, late Uncle Joubert Van Ingen (who, at the age of 100, had written a foreword to the book 'Man-Eaters And Wildlife Challenges' by the Nawab. He dictated the foreword at one breath without a single mistake!) thought he was too old to trace the rogue elephant, he requested the Forest Department to invite me to shoot it at H.D. Kote. I traced the elephant and shot it and this incidence is rich in my memory.

Van Ingen



The other near-death-like experience I can recall was just last month, on Aug. 11, 2017, when I was invited by the Jharkand Government to put down a rogue elephant that had killed 15 people and we tracked it for three days in most difficult terrain and thick impenetrable jungle, the rogue tusker turned around and came for us. My two trackers fled leaving the Veterinarian Dr. Ajay Kumar and me. I saw the 10-foot tall tusker from hardly 10 metres coming for us like a railway engine with a loud trumpet. He raised his head to grab me with his trunk covering the forehead which is the only vital spot to shoot at that close range. A wrongly placed shot would have ended me in a fraction of a second. I took him at 9 metres and shot him in the mouth. The heavy bullet from .458 Magnum brought him to his knees. But he tried to get up in a fraction of a second. Working the bolt fast I fired the second shot in between the eyes and brought him down painlessly and death was instantaneous.

I often strive hard to see that the animal is put out with least pain and agony. Shooting, for me is the last option, when all other remedies have exhausted.

Nomads arrive in city ahead of Dasara festivities

Mysuru, Sept. 18 (SP&NNN)-Among the many attractions that the city explodes to during Dasara, the countdown for which has begun, is the presence of the nomads with their colourful attire and the various items they peddle.

The nomads from Jaipur in Rajasthan have come along with their children and grandchildren and camped near the Big Clock Tower close to Town Hall seeing the business opportunity during Dasara.

The colourful balloons with cartoon characters are attracting the passers-by as they display them on the roadside. The characters that the children are fond of like Chota Bhim, Chutki, Raju, Dora, the lovely fishes, dolphins are all the designs that the nomads are creating by blowing air into the balloons and quickly making them.

"Every year we come ten days in advance of the Dasara commencing and after completing Vijayadashami we return to our place. We always stay in front of the stalls behind Dr. Rajkumar Park. Every day from morning till night we walk the streets of Mysuru. We have identified the places where business is good and we spend more time there," the nomads said, speaking to Star of Mysore.

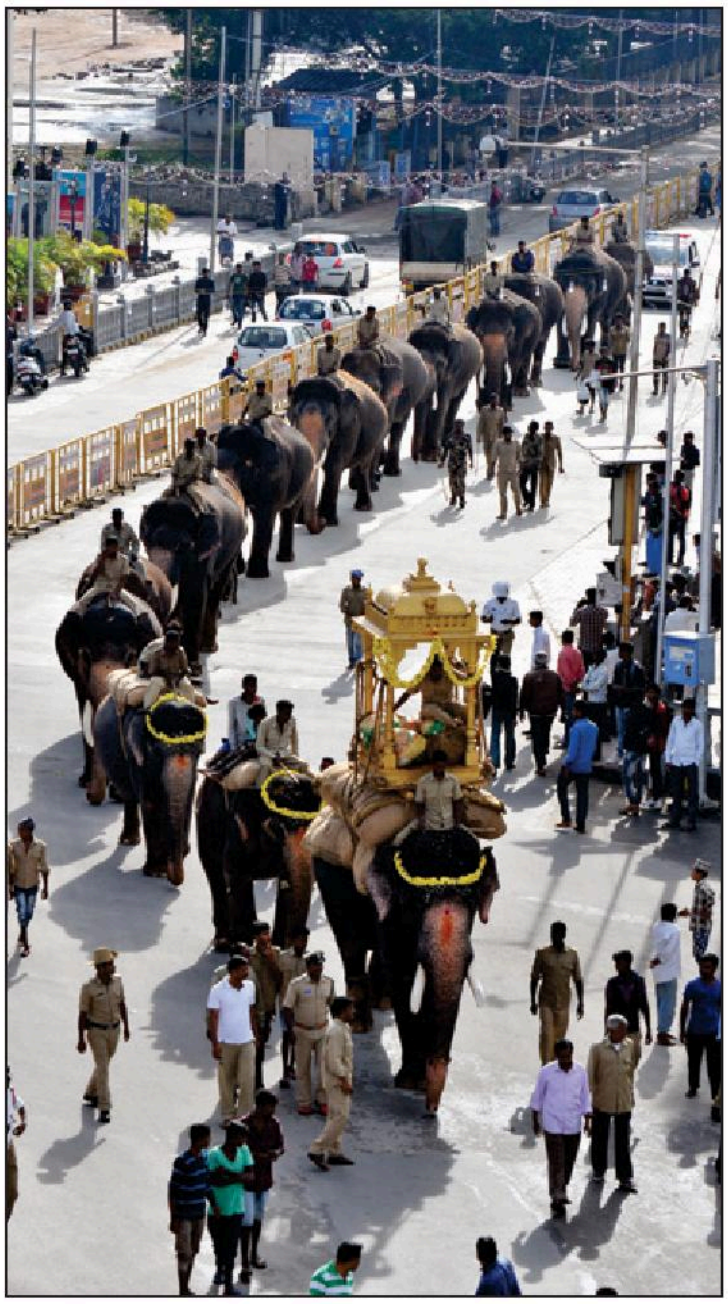
Wooden Howdah
rehearsal begins for Arjuna

Mysuru, Sept.18 (MTY&VNS)- Howdah elephant Arjuna carried the Wooden Howdah for the first time this year with ease and elegance, this morning. Arjuna, accompanied by Kumki elephants Kaveri and Varalakshmi, were brought near the Royal residence from Kodi Someshwara Temple at the Palace premises at 7 am where the Wooden Howdah was placed on Arjuna's back using the crane.

The Howdah was fixed in an hour's time and later the elephants were taken out for their usual rehearsal from the Balarama Gate (North Gate) of the Mysore Palace after offering puja. However, the elephants stopped on reaching K.R. Circle and Maulana Abul Kalam Azad Circle (Highway Circle) to answer nature call. The elephants took about an hour and 20 mins to reach the Bannimantap Ground on Nelson Mandela Road.

Arjuna carried a total of weight of around 550 to 600 kg on its back not a single time it showed signs of panic. While the elephants moved on the Raja Marga, the CESC officials followed them to check if any of the electric wires came in contact with the Golden Howdah.

It may be recalled that last year Wooden Howdah had come in contact with an electric wire during the rehearsal. While the elephants moved on the procession route, passersby were seen stopping by and offering prayers to the pachyderms.



Deputy Conservator of Forests (DCF) V. Yedukondalu, Range Forest Officer (RFO) Rajeshwari, Dr. D.N. Nagaraj, Rangaraju and others were present during the rehearsal.

Ex-Minister Qamarul Islam passes away

Bengaluru, Sept.18- Senior Congress leader and MLA Qamarul Islam (69) passed away this morning following heart attack at a private hospital here. He was admitted to the hospital following some health issues recently.

The body of the former Minister was expected to be shifted to his home town Kalaburagi for last rites later today. He had served as MLA for six times and was elected as a Member of Lok Sabha in 1996 for a single term.

Qamarul Islam was elected as MLA from Kalaburagi-North constituency in the last Assembly elections and had served as Cabinet Minister for Municipal Administration, Public Enterprises, Minority Development and Waqf in the present Karnataka Government led by CM Siddaramaiah from May 2013 to June 2016.

Mayor on horseback inspects city

The public contend that pictures of ZP President and others who go on horseback during Dasara procession should also appear. They seek intervention by District Administration and MCC Commissioner in this context.

City cleanliness under radar

However, if the Central Business District, where the iconic Mysore Palace is located, itself spews garbage and plastic right outside its precincts then the wait will sure get longer. Whether this has come to the notice of the Mayor is still uncertain.

This is exactly the scene at the Palace premises on the left side of the Amba Vilas gate where the Palace Board has given permission to set up shops to sell ice creams and soft drinks. Every day thousands of tourists visit the Palace. Earlier, too, the Palace Board had the shops inside the premises vacated. Added to this, signboards have also been put up claiming that it is a plastic-free zone.

However, in spite of all the efforts, when the visitors buy ice creams, water bottles and other eatables, they just dispose them off carelessly on the pavements. As a result, the Palace premises are looking very unclean.

Added to this, the quality of ice creams sold is of questionable quality and they are being sold at a higher price than the marked one. The Palace security has been handed over to private agency. In spite of this, the area is covered with plastic. However, when asked about this problem, the security personnel expressing their helplessness said that they could stop the sales people who come from outside from harassing the visitors. But, when the Palace Board itself has given permission to set up shops, then they cannot do much about it.

Will the authorities wake up to see that the surroundings of the world famous Palace are kept clean? Otherwise, to regain the tag, which we claimed with pride twice, will remain a distant dream.

Gokulashtami celebrations at Mysore Palace

Mysuru, Sept. 18 (MTY&VNS)- The Palace priests have been conducting various pujas and rituals as part of week-long Gokulastami celebrations which started on Sept. 14 at the Prasanna Krishna Temple located inside the Palace premises.

The priests performed 'Bakasuravadhe' rituals at Savari Thotti in the Palace and later took out a procession of the Lord Krishna's idol around the Palace, yesterday.

They also offered special pujas Royal Cows, Royal Horse and Royal Elephants. The priests will perform 'Yamalarjuna Moksha', 'Mohini-Basmasura', 'Malla Yudha', 'Raasa Kreeda', 'Kamadenu Puja', 'Rukmini Kalyana' and other rituals till Sept. 22 (Friday).

The rituals were witnessed by Pramoda Devi Wadiyar and Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar from the Royal balcony. Also present was Yaduveer's wife Trishikha Kumari Wadiyar, who arrived from Bengaluru yesterday to take part in the Dasara celebrations.

Trishikha, who is pregnant, has been staying in Bengaluru since May, this year.

TN Speaker disqualifies 18 rebel MLAs

The Legislators have been staying at Paddington Resorts in Kodagu

Chennai, Sept. 18- In what can be called as a new twist to the political tale of the All India Anna Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (AIADMK), the 18 MLAs, who had been backing the sidelined party leader, T.T.V. Dinakaran, have been disqualified by the Tamil Nadu Assembly Speaker P. Dhanapal, this morning.

The MLAs have been disqualified with effect from today, under the 1986 Tamil Nadu Assembly Members Party Defection Law. The disqualified MLAs include Thanga Tamilselvan, Senthil Balaji, P. Vetrivel and K. Mariappan.

The Dinakaran faction had earlier met the officials from the Election Commission and requested them to declare the recently-conducted general council meeting of the party null and void.

The faction also moved the Madras High Court on plea over a floor test in the Tamil Nadu Assembly.

The AIADMK, in its general council meeting, had passed a resolution, according to which jailed party General Secretary V.K. Sasikala stood expelled from the party and the post of the temporary General Secretary forfeited.

The resolution further said that the Tamil Nadu Chief Minister E. Palanisamy and his Deputy O. Panneerselvam shall retrieve the party and its symbol. Other terms of the resolution state that all announcements by T.T.V. Dinakaran stand cancelled.

Tamil Nadu's Leader of Opposition M.K. Stalin also said that he had moved the Madras High Court because Governor C. Vidyasagar Rao did not take due cognisance of his request of conducting a floor test in State Assembly. Stalin said he had asserted earlier that he will approach the Court if Governor Rao fails to address his concerns. The DMK leader demanded an immediate floor test from the Governor.

Meanwhile, the AIADMK Karnataka General Secretary Pugalendi has filed a complaint with the Madikeri Police against the alleged Police atrocities on the 18 rebel MLAs who have been staying at the Paddington Resort in Somwarpet, Kodagu, for the past 10 days.

The Police are said to have stopped eight MLAs, who were heading back to the resort from Abbey Falls on the pretext of questioning them.

The MLAs have said that the Tamil Nadu CM Palaniswami was using the Police to threaten them.

Three-day Capsule Expo opens at CFTRI

Mysuru, Sept.18- CFTRI Director Prof. Ram Rajasekharan said that the Chia introduced by the Institute a couple of years ago is a good alternative and vegetarian source of Omega 3. The seed from Mexico introduced through Raitha Mitra has caught the fancy of many farmers.

He was speaking to a few journalists after inaugurating the Capsule Exhibition organised by the Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR), Ministry of Science and Technology at the CFTRI premises, as part of the CSIR Platinum Jubilee celebrations, here this morning.

He said that the crop could be cultivated in about 90 to 120 days and the yield is between 300 to 450 kgs per acre.

"Chia seeds can be mixed with all bakery products. There is also another seed, which CFTRI is popularising called Teff seed, which can be used with idli, dosa, upma, chapathi," he said.

The achievements of CSIR is being showcased in the areas of social intervention, nurturing human resources, intellectual property and entrepreneurship, healthcare and generics to name a few.

"A farmers' training course will be organised shortly to train the farmers in not only growing food but also on how to market them," said Prof. Rajasekharan.

The exhibition is attracting huge crowd with students from schools and colleges visiting the expo. Today and tomorrow it is limited only to students, whereas on the last day (Sept.20), it is open to the public between 10 am and 5 pm. The entry and exit for the visitors will be from CFTRI North Gate opposite Akashvani.

Vaastu-Feng Shui & Bio-energetics

By S.B.S.Surendran

Strengthening inner self through surroundings

Water Bamboo with nine stalks helps in ushering in good luck.

It has been emphasised in the science of Feng Shui that every corner, sector and area of a building has a influence and impact on some aspect of our life and our aspirations. A cut corner often also referred to as missing corner, cluttered area or dark area has a great impact on the wellness of the occupants. In other words, the home is a constantly changing reflection of the life of the occupants, so whatever changes one makes in the home, it reflects in their life.

If the aim is to acquire true wealth and prosperity, we require an environment that works with and not against. To achieve prosperity, one of the first steps in applying Feng Shui is to remove all clutter from our life and from our environment. The negative energy held by dead plants, broken and damaged furniture and uncompleted projects does not contribute to expanding wealth and well-being. Clutter can also be defined as anything unfinished, unresolved or unused.

It is believed that prosperity and abundance circulates through the universe and through all our lives. It is a never-ending flow of giving and receiving. Hence, ensuring proper design and layout and clean environment would be lot more beneficial. Many associate prosperity with financial wealth but true riches are of many kinds. Along with material wealth there is also love, friendships, family, health, knowledge and spiritual wealth which is essential in our lives.

Our thoughts, lifestyle, living conditions have a contribution to our overall prosperity in other words, we mirror our environments. It is a known fact that like attracts like and vibrates in harmony hence Feng Shui emphasises on the quality of energy and design. The mystical actually influences the practical, hence adapting appropriate Feng Shui enhancers and cures in the specific sectors of a building can truly bring in abundance.

Harmonising our inner self and our immediate surroundings can open the channels to achieve greater prosperity and abundance in our lives. It is believed in Feng Shui that Abundance has a particular vibration, a signature energy field, hence when our building resonates in harmony it leads to both more flow and more energy between occupants and their desires.

• Paintings of plants can also encourage healing energies and symbolically enhance the wood energy which signifies growth and prosperity.

• Water Bamboo with nine stalks helps in ushering in good luck.

• Water features activate positive Chi and usher in prosperity if placed in the living rooms and foyer east and north sectors.

• Aroma candles or aroma incense like lavender, Ylang-Ylang or citronella can help cleanse the space to neutralise bad energies and arguments in a home and bring in peace.

As the environment gets strengthened with positive Chi, it ensures good balance and harmony which contributes towards overall prosperity and in turn, the energy of the occupants will also get a boost.

Sharp-shooter Shafath Ali Khan

SOM: Asghar Ali Khan, your son is also an authorised shooter. So, the family tradition continues?

Shafath Ali Khan: Asghar, is an authorised shooter and a crack shot. He has a .470 double rifle on his licence and helps me in dangerous tranquillising operation. But he along with my wife Shaheen keep the fire burning and looks after our chain of resorts in the Nilgiris. Often when a long drawn operation is coming to a conclusion, I summon him to join me as a backup.

SOM: Running Safari Land Resort must be a great experience for you and your family?

Shafath Ali Khan: Definitely yes. The very thought of living in a deep jungle arouses a sense of bliss within me. Forests and wildlife are very close to my heart. Riding in the jungle every morning is a thrill that I have no words to explain. Safari Land has given what no other luxurious Palace in the world can give us.

SOM: But are you related to the Nizam family of Hyderabad?

Shafath Ali Khan: Yes, yes. We are from the royal family of Hyderabad. We were equal to the Nizams, like you had the Maharajas and Ursus in Mysuru. The Nizam married into our family, our daughters were given in the Nizams family. So we were equals.

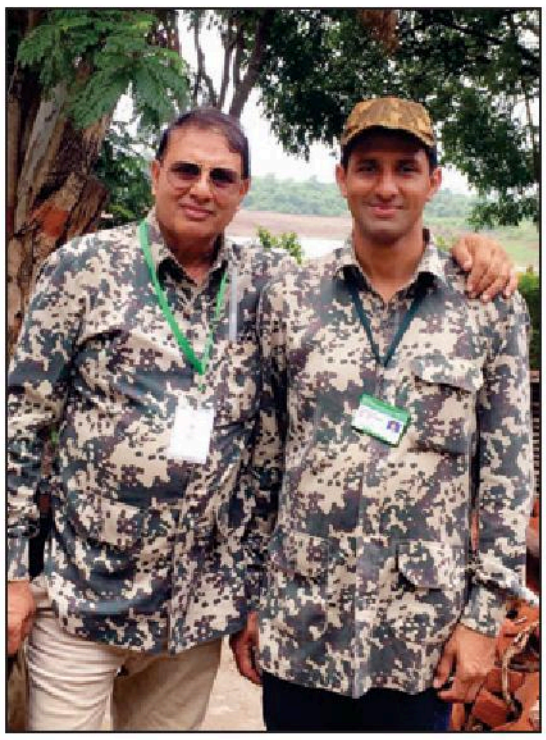
SOM: How long do you think you can carry this crusade of yours as a hunter and sharp-shooter?

Shafath Ali Khan: My priorities are no longer shooting. Having worked for several assignments for the past four decades, I have been involved in 24 dangerous operations and have culled thousands of animals. No one in the country has shot as many animals as I have done. My priority is not shooting or culling any more. My focus is to help those five crore people who are living in 1,87,000 villages and the forests across the country in most adverse conditions. Since I have worked, stayed and eaten with them, I know what it means by hunger.

Several interior villagers are living in a state of anarchy, in constant fear of wild elephants that raid the villages, break their huts, and eat away their rations. Women with infants in their arms run in the middle of the night to the next village 3 kms away. There is no one to wipe their tears. This is fresh in my mind from Jharkhand. I sometimes wonder whether the Constitutional rights, the right to life and liberty is guaranteed only for the elite and not my brothers and sisters who suffer in silence.

My passion now is to work for them, get them the due compensation, get the government to erect solar fencing to protect them. I don't charge the government for service and time that I give. Tears of gratitude from underprivileged forest-dwellers when I shoot down a rogue elephant or a man-eating tiger, give me energy to work for them for another 100 years.

[Concluded]



Shafath Ali Khan with his son Asghar Ali Khan.

When Star of Mysore Features Editor N. Niranjan Nikam travelled all the way to meet the Sharp-Shooter at his den in the midst of the jungle at the Safari Land Resorts in Masinagudi, Tamil Nadu, Nawab Shafath Ali Khan and his son Asghar Ali Khan, drove this writer in the jungle in their American Jeep M-38 A1, a 1952 model four-wheeler late in the evening and it was a hair-raising experience as the young driver at the wheel negotiated the tough, lovely, Blue Nilgiri Hills range. Both of them are attuned to every sight and sound in the forest even as the Nawab spotted two elephants and a calf at quite a distance instinctively. Later, the Nawab sat in his unique restaurant and for nearly two hours spoke freely in this exclusive interview about royalty, how to manage forests, the officials in the department, man-animal conflict, his views on radio collaring, culling, animal right activists and his anguish about the forest-dwellers and the villagers living in the fringes of the forest.

Mandya, Sept. 18- The historical annual Srirangapatna Dasara festival, a three-day cultural extravaganza, will be celebrated from Sept. 24. Senior writer K. Marulasiddappa is expected to inaugurate the event.

The Mysuru Dasara Committee has allocated Rs. 50 lakh to celebrate the event at Srirangapatna, N. Manjushri, Deputy Commissioner, told a section of the Press. "We are also seeking financial grants from the Departments of Information and Public Relations, Tourism and Kannada and Culture for the event," she added.

A procession of Goddess Chamundeshwari idol on an elephant, will be taken out from Bannimantap on the outskirts of Srirangapatna to Ranganatha Swamy Temple. Cultural troupes and tableau from across the district will take part.

He started the Dasara festivities at Srirangapatna as it was the capital of Mysuru then. Though it was shifted to Mysuru in 1799, the tradition of celebrating Dasara continued in a small way at Srirangapatna till several years ago. It was stopped later, and restarted in 2007.

WORD OF THE DAY

Amanuensis

Meaning: One employed to write from dictation or to copy manuscript.

Orign: In Latin, the phrase servus a manu translates loosely as "slave with secretarial duties." (The noun manu, meaning "hand," gave us words such as manuscript, which originally referred to a document written or typed by hand.) In the 17th century, the second part of this phrase was borrowed into English to create amanuensis, a word for a person who is employed (willingly) to do the important but sometimes menial work of transcribing the words of another. While other quaint words, such as scribe or scrivener, might have similarly described the functions of such a person in the past, these days we're likely to call him or her a secretary or an administrative assistant.

Examples: "He then proceeded in his investigation, dictating, as he went on, the import of the questions and answers to the amanuensis, by whom it was written down." —Sir Walter Scott, Waverley, 1814; "In this version of the myth, Holmes is a real-world character whose exploits were rendered in print by his sidekick and amanuensis Dr. Watson, who's long since dead." —Marc Mohan, The Oregonian (Portland, Oregon), 17 July 2015

THE ODD WORD

Hagiolatry

Worship or reverence for saints.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

In stitches

Meaning: If you're "in stitches", you're laughing so hard that your sides hurt.

Example: "He was so funny — he had me in stitches all evening."

Origins: Presumably comparing the physical pain of intense laughter with the prick of a needle, "in stitches" was first used in 1602 by Shakespeare in Twelfth Night. After this, the expression isn't recorded again until the 20th century, but it's now commonplace.

Though they make it harder to learn, expressions such as those we've covered in this article are also what make English so much fun. There are many, many more, and if you choose to attend one of our English as a Foreign Language (EFL) courses, you can look forward to adding even more English idioms to your ever-expanding vocabulary.

QUOTE BOX

God is a comedian playing to an audience too afraid to laugh.
